ComSource, Inc. is the leading provider of two-way radio and high speed wireless data equipment in Michigan since 1995 to local and state government, public safety, including police, fire and EMS.

ComSource believes that the future of public safety is having a unified surveillance system that is reliable, rugged and integrates seamlessly on the job. "By adding the Panasonic products to our portfolio we allow our customers more options when it comes to safety and communication," said Daryl Jackson, Owner & CEO of ComSource.

Although ComSource is initially targeting public safety for the new products, other industries such as manufacturing, construction, education, health care and more can also benefit from the ruggedness and reliability of the Panasonic Toughbook computers and Toughpad tablets.
